Parents' Bulletin

Dear Parents

Year 11 Photograph

We had the year 11 photograph on Tuesday morning. Although it was raining when they set up the stand, it held off for our students. They were absolutely brilliant, possibly the quickest photograph with the fewest takes ever. Our photographers are always impressed by our students.

Although our Year 11 students are numerous, the shot was complete in one take. With whole school photographs, I believe that there used to be a scanning process, where the camera would swivel in some way to cover the entire length of the crowd of students assembled. This, of course, gave the enterprising (and naughty) student the option of appearing twice – once at the start of the scan and again at the end by ducking down, after they had been photographed, running behind other students and popping up at the other end before the camera got there. Could be an urban myth though, or maybe fake news.

Schools urged to teach problem solving

I googled "schools urged to teach" and the following topics came up:

- Problem solving
- Basic skills
- The practicalities of student finance
- Good parenting skills
- Consent in sex education
- The risks of texting and online abuse.
- How to stay healthy and safe at work
- Female egg freezing technology
- Freedom of speech
- Life skills
- Teach germs a lesson (?)
- How to save a life

This was, over a period of years, but then if you replace urged to "with should", another set of topics emerge.

All of them worthy and many of them we want to and actually deal with, in subjects, PHSE, assemblies and Tutor time. However, while we know that education in such matters can make

Hampshire
County Council

a significant contribution, this should not detract from the responsibility of parents and other societal institutions to deliver their part as well – schools cannot be solely responsible for the solving of societal ills, even though they seem to be the first port of call.

Sporting success

Our Year 10 girls are Hampshire U15 Basketball champions. In a match which went back and forth and one which we were losing even in the fifth quarter. The final score of 60-55 says a lot about the determination and perseverance of our students. Not to mention their skill. Two of the squad are double Hampshire champions, having represented the school in Netball as well. We are really proud of them all.
